WSP USA INSPECTION SERVICES DISASTER AWARENESS REPORT

June 6, 2025

Severe Weather Outlook

- Nearly 90 million Americans are under threat of severe weather Friday in an area covering a broad swathe of the continental U.S. east of the Rocky Mountains.
- The FOX Forecast Center expects damaging wind gusts and large hail to be the main hazards for those living in the area covered by the threat, as rounds of severe storms are expected to last through the weekend.
- The southern Plains, including the Texas panhandle, Oklahoma and Kansas, are at particular risk of large, egg-sized hail on Friday on the heels of a strong supercell thunderstorm that produced several tornadoes and flash flooding from the New Mexico state line to Lubbock, Texas.
- Severe thunderstorms produced tornado warnings in Oklahoma in the early morning hours on Friday.
- Storms are expected to develop daily in the afternoons and evenings, with leftover energy driving some thunderstorm formation in the overnight hours. The threat is expected to gradually move east as the weekend progresses.
